B. If a student retakes a course that has already been completed, the earned credits will not be counted again and will not be included in the graduation credits. Students must apply carefully considering the graduation requirements.
C. In accordance with Article 33, Paragraph 7 of the Academic Regulations, students whose parents is employed as a faculty member at the university are, in principle, not permitted to enroll in courses taught by their parent. However, if enrolling in a parent's course is unavoidable to fulfill curriculum requirements, the student must report this in advance.
8. Other precautions
1)addition, correction, or change is possible after the course registration period.
In particular, course registration changes after the start of the semester due to participation in special education programs, overseas study programs, or internships are not permitted. If students withdraw from these programs and the affected course becomes subject to cancellation or class consolidation, the university may be required to cancel the course or merge it with another section. Therefore, students planning to participate in these programs must complete their course registration during the course registration period or the course registration change period.
2)registering for a course, students must check the course title, course category, number of credits, class schedule, and classroom, etc.
3) are not available for subjects that have not been registered properly.
(Students should confirm that both the course and the correct class section appear in the University Information System and the electronic attendance system.)
4) Students must check the course syllabus and grade evaluation method (Grade or P/F, etc.) when registering for the course.
