B. Fourth-year students who are unable to graduate due to insufficient graduation credits, failure to complete required credits, incomplete minor, double major, or track credit requirements must register for courses necessary to fulfill the relevant requirements.
C. Other Important Notes
1) Students taking credit exchange courses must complete online course registration and submit a credit exchange application form through their department.
2) After the semester begins, additional course registration or changes will not be permitted, except in cases of course cancellation, course merger, or timetable conflicts.
In particular, course registration changes after the start of the semester will not be permitted due to participation in special education programs, overseas training, internships, or similar programs. If students participating in such programs withdraw and the course becomes subject to cancellation or merger, the course may inevitably be cancelled or merged, which may affect students who are normally taking the course.
3) If a student retakes a course that has already been completed, the previously earned credits will be deleted and will not be counted toward graduation credits. Therefore, students should carefully consider their graduation requirements before retaking a course.
4) Students must take all required courses that affect graduation.
5) Before registering for a course, students must check the course title, course category, credits, class time, classroom, and other relevant details.
6)Grades cannot be given for courses that were not properly registered. Students must check after the semester begins whether the courses they are taking are registered in the online University Information System and the electronic attendance system.
7) In accordance with Article 33, Paragraph 7 of the University Regulations, students are, in principle, not allowed to take courses taught by their parents if their parents are faculty members of the university. However, if a student is inevitably required to take a course taught by a parent due to curriculum requirements, the student must report this fact.
8) Students must check the syllabus and grading method, such as letter grade or P/F, before registering for courses.
